

Five Points of View

What are some of the reasons that a person might be employed full time, but still be poor?

What are some things that people might do to prevent others from knowing how poor or affluent (wealthy) they are?

What do you think is the difference between the lifestyle of a family which is poor and one which has enough money to live comfortably. (e.g. where do they live, what do they do for entertainment, what might be their attitude about money? etc.)

Who puts the most pressure on teenagers to spend money?
Why?

What are some of the things that teens are expected to buy (e.g. by peers, their school, or for extra-curricular activities) that some teens would have difficulty affording?
